

Dear guests,

a very warm welcome to you. I am very pleased that following the motto „Womxn Performing Selves“, the focus of this year’s artistic debate is the public space. It is a feminist response to the experience during the pandemic and the struggle for visibility, participation and empowerment. I’m very excited that in its intersectional and intergenerational approach, the festival creates space for new forms of representation, encounter and social change. Here, womxn define and perform themselves. They take their space: on, behind and in front of the stage.
